

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

A School Economic History of England. By CHARLOTTE M. WATERS. Oxford: The Clarendon Press, 1920. Pp. xii+315.

An excellent and readable treatment of English economic history in textbook form designed for the upper forms of the English secondary schools.

Sympathy and System in Giving. By ELWOOD STREET. Chicago: A. C. McClurg & Co., 1921. Pp. xii+161. $1.00.

A practical and enlightening book on the subject of modern charity which should prove invaluable to the giver who wants to give intelligently and effectively.

A Religion for the New Day. By CHARLES F. DOLE. New York: B. W. Huebsch, Inc., 1920. Pp. xiv+297. $2.00.

A critical analysis of the spiritually impotent religion of our day and a stimulating presentation of the new faith already dawning in the world.

Everyman's Child. By SOPHIE IRENE LOEB. New York: The Century Co., 1920. Pp. 286. $2.00.

This book is a well-written, enthusiastic presentation of the problem of the child ward of society. Valuable information is given about the progress that has been made in behalf of dependent children, and a program for future accomplishment is an important feature of the book.

Jailed for Freedom. By DORIS STEVENS. New York: Boni & Liveright, 1920. Pp. xiv+388. $3.00.

Everyone who cares for truth and freedom will enjoy this fascinating and dramatic story of the thrilling, spirited campaign of the militant suffrage group in the struggle for political freedom.

China, Japan, and Korea. By J. O. P. BLAND. New York: Charles Scribner's Sons, 1921. Pp. x+327. $5.00.

This is a thoughtful and extraordinarily interesting work on the "Far East question." The fact that the writer lived for more than thirty years in China makes him competent to speak with understanding upon this subject, which is rapidly assuming a place of first importance in international affairs.